Hi everyone,

It's that time again. How are your preps going? Here are 2 more tasks that should take much time at all and will help you on the road to being more prepared for an emergency.

Task #1: calculate how much water you and your pets use in a day. It is a minimum of one gallon/person/day, though you need at least that much for each drinking and bathing. This may be more or less for pets/livestock. I will attached a worksheet below.

Task #2: add one day's worth of water per person/animal to your storage. You can bottle your own, fill a cistern, buy water bottles or gallon containers.

This is a vital task as water is the most important prep you can have. Remember the rule of 3. Three minutes without air, three days without water, three weeks without food.

Have a great weekend,

Barb 🌻
